Orthopedic conditions impact lives everywhere

All of us experience some level of muscle, joint, or back and neck pain from time to time. But when orthopedic injury robs individuals of their mobility, dexterity, and even their state of mind, it can be devastating to life at home and work.

Half of all adults struggle with bone, joint, and muscle issues, and about one in five visits to a healthcare professional in the U.S. involves a musculoskeletal condition such as a bone and joint condition (66 million annual visits) and lower back pain (52 million visits).¹ In fact, orthopedic conditions impact a staggering 1.71 billion people worldwide.² An aging population is contributing to that number quickly growing even higher.²

Orthopedics issues and related pain can impact life too. That's why we're here to help you get back to living your best lives.

5 small changes that can have a big impact

- // Stretch daily.
- // Take breaks frequently and stretch stiff muscles.
- // Wear comfortable shoes that fit properly.
- // Don't ignore pain—change positions or stop activities that hurt.
- // Warm up before any activity—even before walking.
