Volume 2

Recovery is possible.

Bob was moving quickly up the corporate ladder in the 1980s. He was an executive on the rise in a Fortune 200 company and was being groomed for much larger opportunities. One day, as Bob says, he ended up at the right party on the wrong day with a group of businessmen from Chicago. Cocaine was brought out at the function, and as coke was deemed to be the champagne of the '80s, Bob tried it. At the time, cocaine was in wide use and wasn't seen as an addictive drug by most. Unfortunately for Bob, he found out that not only is cocaine very addictive, it has the ability to destroy your life. His employer at the time didn't know what to do with him, as his performance had greatly dropped off; he had almost 50 meetings to discuss the situation, all without involving Bob. In fact, the only meeting Bob had with his employer was when they let him go. This moment convinced Bob to seek treatment, and since this point in his life, he has involved himself heavily in the cause to change the stigma around substance use disorder and give others hope for recovery.

/// Confidentiality and coverage go hand in hand.

The Contigo Health® Centers of Excellence 360 Substance Use Disorder Program is here to help members escape substance use and enjoy long-term recovery: that's the distinct purpose of the tools and support it offers. This program is available to plan members with 100% coverage,[†] and our commitment to absolute confidentiality, diversity, flexibility, and respect elevates this program beyond a better way to treat people—it creates a way to treat people better. And of course, participation will not be shared with employers.

/// Not just high-quality treatment, but the right treatment.

Designed alongside clinical partners, our substance use disorder treatment program provides access to treatment tailored to the individual and accessible 24 hours a day, with help in as little as an hour. Care includes virtual, home-based treatment through category pioneer Lionrock, and in-person treatment through world-renowned Hazelden Betty Ford.* This approach allows the individual flexibility to maintain their family and work obligations while also focusing on getting better. The COE 360 Substance Use Disorder Program offers all of this and a team that surrounds members throughout their treatment journey on their terms with a program that aligns with their lifestyle.

Here for members throughout the process.

We are here to help guide members along the way, including getting them started with Contigo Health's SUD program.
